Why is attention not focused on developing non-polluting, renewable energy sources? Why is the state still waffling about building more coal-fired plants? A Georgia Tech study in 2007 showed that near shore wind could supply electric energy exceeding 10 times the capacity of the proposed Plant Washington.

Hello,

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

I am not able to attend the forum in person, I have included the following questions:

How can our area sustain the needed water this plant will require? We barely make it through the summers now without ponds, streams, and even our rivers drying up. How can you think that millions of gallons needed will be available in the Oconee River and if that option becomes unavailable, then what? Are wells going to be drilled and what will be the impacts of this action?

I am also concerned as to why little effort has been given to educate the neighboring counties on this issue. Environmental impacts of this plant will not stop at the county line. This plant will impact neighboring counties with air quality issues, possible water issues, etc. yet I have seen little or no effort to involve our voices in this process.

Coal is an outdated, costly natural resource that taxes other more needed resources, such as water, in order to produce a commodity. There are more important things in life than the all mighty dollar, please look into other avenues to produce the power that we need that will not spoil our lovely area of the state.

Thank you for your time.

If I am not able to attend in person, I have included my question here:

Power4Georgians estimates that Plant Washington will emit 6.2 million tons of carbon dioxide, 122 pounds of toxic mercury, and 1,896 tons of sulfur dioxide into our air and water every year. In addition, a 30-mile pipeline would devastate local water resources by taking up to 16 million gallons of water from the Oconee River and groundwater per day.

The local people are afraid of retribution. Anyone connected with the "county leaders" and depend upon them for their jobs are afraid of retribution (similar to civil rights and landowner vs. kaolin mining rights) of the past. I know people have to have jobs, but they also have to be able to breath air and drink water. If not for "money," and with all the new advances in solar, why would anyone want to have the pollution that will occur with coal?

Hello,

As it is currently mined and burned, coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment which uses too much clean water and produces too many pollutants which ultimately impact human health and the quality of life. I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington until such time as the industry can reclaim, or drastically reduce, the pollutants that it produces.

I am not able to attend in person, I have included my question here:

Why can't energy conservation measures be implemented to reduce the need to expand power generation until technology produces the methods that will produce clean energy. I recently saw a stretch of I-75 in Middle Georgia that was equipped with high intensity street lights but had nothing to light other than open highway. This is one small example of rampant energy and economic waste in this state.

In spite of all the jobs it would create, Georgia is in such a water crisis that we cannot create something that would make the crisis worse.

Our lakes and stream are not back up to normal. How can you possibility think of building a plant that will use millions of gallons of water in Oconoee River, plus pollute it.

This is downright wrong!

Hello Ms. Glynn,

I write you to request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington. As I will not be able to attend the meeting in Sandersville, I wish to now put to you the following questions:

1. How can feeding Atlanta more energy justify pouring tons of of CO2 and SO2, and mercury as well, into our air and water?
2. How can feeding Atlanta more energy justify pulling millions of gallons from a Georgia treasure like the Oconee River?
3. How can this short-sighted plan to feed Atlanta more energy be fair to future generations of Georgia who will have to live with the bad decisions we make today?

Thank-you for your response to these questions. I'll look forward to hearing details about the meeting.

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

Every year thousands of Georgians come down with preventable respiratory infections due to complications from air pollution. Children, the elderly, and many individuals suffering from asthma already depend on Georgia cleaning up its environment if they have a chance of improving their health. Georgia has one of the worst air quality rankings in the nation and people will not want to move here or move their businesses here, if they see how filthy it is and how little regard we have for our own health.

There are many other options to provide power to our growing communities. Wind, solar, and hydroelectric are viable, clean power solutions. I am urging you to deny this permit and consider alternative options for Georgia. Thank you.

Coal is an environmentally disastrous, outdated, inefficient, water-intensive and costly approach to supplying power. The proposed 16 million gallons of water per day that would be withdrawn for this proposed project would dewater the Oconee River and other streams and wetlands in Washington County.

EPD should deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

I am able to attend the EPD HEARING on Thursday, March 5th at 6 pm because of a conflicting hearing in which I am providing expert testimony.

My question for the hearing is:

How can EPD consider such an environmentally destructive project that would dewater an entire rural county simply to supply cheap power to Atlanta, a metropolitan area that has made no effort to initiate mandatory reductions in power consumption?

Hello,

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

As I am not able to attend in person, I have included my question here:

Has the EPD evaluated the environmentally responsible alternatives to this coal plant, including the combined impact of a high profile, statewide energy conservation program together with alternative energy solutions such as biomass and offshore wind farms?

Hello,

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington. I am personally outraged at the thought of this proposal.

I am not able to attend in person, I have included my question here: Are you aware that carbon dioxide emissions from U.S. coal-based electricity are greater than emissions from all the cars and trucks in America? In today's world, we can't afford another dirty coal plant; "clean coal" is simply an oxymoron.

In our current situation, with the economy weak and climate change coming like a freight train, it's utter stupidity to spend our money on any plant run on coal. This plant will make things even worse, and will be an expensive white elephant from day one, draining money that should go toward HELPING Georgia's future, not KILLING it!

Hello,

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

It is time for the Georgia Legislature to show some leadership and promote energy and water efficiency first, before poorer solutions such as coal fired power plants. Look around the country, such as Texas, and see that renewable sources of energy are being selected by governments over coal fired plants. Energy and water efficiency should be the first tactic to control or, heaven forbid, reduce our energy consumption. And it is much less expensive. I would like to know your view point on this subject.

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

If I am not able to attend in person, I have included my question here:

Why do we always fall back to familiar technology that we know is harmful just because it is viewed as cheap in the short term? Wouldn't it be wiser to look at the long term and use innovation?

Hello,

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that you deny a permit for the proposed Washington power plant. I live in middle Georgia, and the air is too bad already, most of which comes from that plant in NW Georgia. Wait until the technology for burying carbon is available.

If I am not able to attend in person, I have included my question here:

No coal plant should be built in middle Georgia, the most populated area of the state. Is this site near Washington, GA?

Hello,

As coal is a dirty, outdated and risky investment, I request that EPD deny the permit to build Plant Washington.

I am not able to attend the forum in Sandersville, but I want to ask the Georgia Environmental Protection Division to act with care and wisdom as they consider the permit to build the new coal fired power plant, Plant Washington, a 850 megawatt coal-fired power plant in middle Georgia. Must we expand dirty power production in a time when the scientific and commercial communities agree there are cleaner alternative energy sources within reach?

As the South is has one of the longest growing seasons, why can we not invest in harnessing solar energy and putting that back into the power grid instead of something as bad for the environment and for us as coal?
Can we not just build solar fields instead?
