Comments:

Things happen - examples - sludge pond dam breaks, salmonella outbreaks, tornadoes, etc. My concern stems from a letter to the editor in the Sandersville progress from power & georgians stating they would only store dry ash at the plant and therefore a dam break from a sludge pond was impossible. In the last year we have had numerous tornadoes in northern Washington County.

My question is what safety measures would be in place to keep this ash from being spread in the event of a direct hit from a tornado. what procedures will be in place to clean up the ash.
