

The new Environmental Protection Division Air Protection Branch Ambient Air Program public website is now available.

Ambient monitoring is the methodical, long-term measurement of certain pollutant levels in the surrounding, outdoor air. The new website address is: <http://amp.georgiaair.org> . If necessary, users will be redirected from the old website: <http://www.georgiaair.org/amp/>.

Some of the improvements with the new website include:

- New look and feel that is user friendly and up-to-date.
- Interactive map enabling users to conveniently access data for all continuous ambient air monitoring locations.
- Easy access to forecasting data.
- Convenient retrieval of violations data – current and historical.
- Helpful links to websites such as the State Climatologist and AirNow.
- Compliant for use with mobile devices and tablets.
